

To Whom It May ConcernI am going to try to keep this short but want to let you know how VITAL it is to have access to both SCREENING mammograms AND ultrasounds. I have been getting BOTH annually for over 15 years as I have type C breasts (dense). A little over a year ago I had a 1 inch papilloma removed that was uncovered only by the ultrasound, not the mammo the week prior. The two tests compliment each other and for women with dense breasts it is vital they have both for screening. Mainly the only way one uncovers any issues is via these two diagnostic tests.I was recently in FL and even though I had the papilloma removed a year prior, I could not get a screening mammogram in FL done as I needed a diagnosis...chicken and egg.Something is broken in the medical profession and CT has the opportunity to lead the country with advanced thinking and policies to back it up.I strongly urge you to consider the full package and pass this very needed bill. We all know people affected by breast cancer and this WILL make a big difference.Thank you for you consideration.Kim
